Northvale Learn

Free beta · Ages 13 and up

About Northvale Learn

A calm, bilingual app for learning how money works. Made for young people whose lives cross the US–Mexico border, and useful to anyone 13 and up.

What it is

Northvale Learn is a free beta app that teaches money in four-minute lessons, in English or Spanish. You set a goal, learn what it takes, and practice with pretend money. Nothing in it moves real money.

Who it's for

- Teens 13–17: the basics before the money gets real. An account needs a parent's or guardian's OK.
- Young adults with a first paycheck, a first card or a first investment.
- Families, teachers and clubs who want a calm place: no ads, nothing to buy.

Why it's different

- Built for two countries. Every lesson has a US and a Mexico version: dollars or pesos, FDIC or IPAB, 401(k) or AFORE. Choose “Both” to see them together.
- Made for the border. Exchange rates, what sending money costs, accounts and cards in two countries, and credit when you move.
- Easy to start. Open it and answer a first question in three taps. No sign-up; an account is optional.

THE PROMISE

No ads. We never sell your data. Nobody pays us to recommend anything.

It's written in the app too: Me, then Our promise.

What it isn't

- Not a bank or a broker. No real money or bank connections.
- Not advice. Lessons explain how money works and never say what to buy or sell.
- Not finished. It's a small beta. Every screen has a feedback button, and every message is read.

Teachers and clubs

Classroom mode is a small test with invited teachers. Students join with a class code and a nickname, no email. Teachers see lesson progress, never goals, amounts or notes. No messaging of any kind.

Built by a student, for students

Made by a student who wanted a calm place to learn about money: no ads, no pressure, no jargon.

At a glance

Price	Free beta
Ages	13 and up
Languages	English, Spanish
Countries	United States, Mexico
Lessons	63 lessons, 18 units
Account	Optional

Scan to join the free beta northvale-learn.fly.dev/welcome

Educational only. Not financial advice. No real money moves in the app.